The photo opposite shows just how overpowering some of these trees are. But not only that they are dying and already some branches have already fallen - an obvious danger to the vehicles parked below and to pedestrians.

It is hoped that when given the light and space that is currently denied them, the remaining indigenous trees will start to flourish.

However it is vital that their growth should be monitored and not allowed to cause a similar concern in the future.

Kernow Microscopical Society

The next meeting of the Kernow Microscopical Society will be on Saturday October 20th in the Killifreth room at Chacewater village hall at 2.00pm. We shall be discussing and examining the use of stacking, or Z focus software, as applied to the art of the photomicrography of thick specimens.

If you are interested, do come along. You don't need to have a microscope. Our meetings focus on the practical aspects of microscopy; we try to have workshops, using microscopes and exploring methods of preparing specimen slides to view. Our members include professional microscopists who can assist with queries on instruments and microscopical techniques.

At the last meeting, pond weed from Pendarves Lake, near Camborne, was examined to see what microorganisms were attached. The outflow water was also examined.

Both were first concentrated by settlement. The outflow water was especially rich in Protozoa. We are regularly examining this freshwater lake and recording the microscopical organisms in it. Very often, the smallest, microscopical, wildlife is never recorded, so we can add to the wildlife survey.

We are currently actively searching for new members and would be very happy to welcome you. Have a look at our 2018 events diary at <http://kernowmicroscopy.webplus.net> to see our meetings for the rest of the year. You can also email us at kernowmicroscopy@webplus.net.

We look forward to welcoming more of you to our meetings. Tea and biscuits are available too!

CHACEWATER RIGHTS OF WAY (CROW) WALK SUNDAY 2nd SEPTEMBER 2018

The early CRoW walking group Autumnal season got off to a splendid start with a goodly 4-mile trek in slightly damp but increasingly bright weather conditions on the first Sunday in September – in fact, by the time we returned to the car park it was practically tropical!

We set off as usual at 9.30.am and ambled off down the Twelveheads Road, for about a third of a mile, before moving on up and all the way along Public Byway 301/36/1. Eventually emerging out on the Creegbrowse to Twelveheads skyline road, from we took the opportunity to view huge sections of the Poldice Valley below as well as the fabulous scenery beyond, which reflects so much of our historic past. Absorbed for a moment, we soon headed off right towards the Church Hill crossing where we turned down left towards Todpool.

Not a vehicle in sight and blackberries aplenty, this was brilliant and our enthusiasm could not be quelled, although the sight of so much Japanese Knotweed did cause some concerning discussion along the way.

Turning right at Todpool, along and over the busy road leading to Crofthandy and of course the United Downs Re-cycling centre (particularly busy on a Sunday!), the group took the opportunity to re-visit two areas of specific concern in recent months. Firstly, the clear change to the horizon created by the significant earth movements occurring at the Tolgullow Vein Farm area just opposite Unity Wood in our neighbouring parish of Gwennap. It is truly enormous and we understand the Environment Agency (EA) are on the case! Secondly, the bottom of Unity Wood itself which was subject to some quite severe coppicing before the most recent bird nesting season started last March. We were pleased that much of chopped wood had been removed and evidence of new growth was already emerging from the low-level habitat areas.

We then doubled back and up Bridleway 301/13/2 past the two magnificent Unity Mine structures before arriving out near Truro Tractors and Cox Hill. Keeping our collective wits about us as this road does get busy, the final leg of this particular walk connected us with the lovely Bridleway 301/49/1 and 2, at the end of which we said goodbye to John Peck, Carol Green and their friend, Jane, who was down from London. The rest of the group hooked up with Byway 301/50/1 and 2, back onto Church Hill and down into the main settlement village of Chacewater; at which point Paul Shevlin advised us of some research being undertaken into tracking the original Chacewater to Redruth mining trainline of some 200 years ago.

Another great walk in lovely company, the next CRoW walk will step out from the Square Car Park at 9.30am on Sunday 7th October 2018. Also, don't forget to view the cornwalltrails.net website to view other walks in the area. Go on, give them a go!

Time and Space for You

What is counselling? Isn't it JUST talking?. Here's an everyday analogy to give a very simplistic idea of the process.

In your home is a laundry basket, clothes cascading from it, blocking the entrance to your front door. You can't let anyone in and it gets in your way constantly. You can't remember how it got there, what's in it or how it got so full. You used to know how to deal with it but now the task seems overwhelming. You feel sure no-one else has a basket like this, it makes you anxious and depressed. Today you've had enough. Today you've made the brave decision to ask for help.

You choose a laundry partner who has been recommended and you know is part of a laundry professional body! You worry that she will judge you and you are filled with guilt and shame. Instead she greets you with warmth and understanding. She isn't afraid to look at your laundry with you; listening as you tell her about each item, gently asking questions, challenging you, seeming to really understand how you are feeling. Some items are important to you, some you'd forgotten. You decide together what to deal with first, you sort, discuss, create piles. At first the mess seems to get bigger. Was this a good idea? Will this chaos ever get any better?

Some things need careful hand washing. Some items you throw out. Some things never did fit and when you look at them together, she is honest and genuine in a way you haven't experienced before. You decide to get out a needle and thread to make some changes. You find an item that meant a lot to you but it seems so stained it may never be of use again. Talking it through, you begin to see past the anger and sadness about the damage and focus on the experiences you had whilst wearing it. You see the stain is a part of the pattern of the fabric, you find a sense of peace about what happened. Slowly you begin to see the bottom of the basket.

One day you find the entrance to your home is much clearer. You have remembered how to use the washing machine and have learned new programmes. Your laundry partner has been with you every step of the way while you made your discoveries, faced P.T.O.

sadness and challenges, stayed with you when you felt it was all too much to deal with, never judging, never questioning your ability to move forward, respecting your knowledge of you and what was in your basket. Today though, you feel strong enough to stand on your own, grateful for the partnership on your laundry journey you turn and say 'Thank you for your help but I've got this now'

Chacewater NDP and Renewable Energy Fair 15TH SEP 2018

After months of hard work from a great team of dedicated volunteers, our long-awaited Draft Neighbourhood Development Plan was shown to the public of Chacewater.

The start of this phase of the public consultation was held in the village hall, alongside one of the spin off projects from the plan which was the Renewable Energy Fair organised by the Chacewater Energy Group.

There was a high level of interest in the plan with over 200 people attending. Many people gave us comments on the day, and more are always welcome. The plan can be seen on our website <http://www.chacewater.net/chacewater-neighbourhood-plan-2>. Please take a look. Other public face to face sessions are planned see dates and times in What's On and on the website.

The Plan consultation will run for some weeks, allowing fine tuning in response to comments received. The plan is really readable, so please click on the site, and fire us off a note or two.

The Public Consultation period ends on Saturday 27th October.

Renewable Energy Fair

The Renewable Energy Fair also attracted a lot of interest, with that part of the hall packed for much of the afternoon. Ten local companies were there, which gave the chance for local people to ask about what can be achieved to move our community on to become a standard bearer for sustainability, and bring down the energy costs of running our homes and businesses. All part of doing our bit towards carbon reduction in the Parish as well as helping to save our planet for future generations.

We also had a great series of talks in the Wheal Jane room, again very well attended. Rob Knill gave two of these which giving an overview of where we are with our Neighbourhood Development Plan, and what happens next. The plan will be fundamental to help us ensure our community develops in the way that we want. Other speakers talked about the renewable energy side of the event. We heard from Sarah Newton MP who laid out the UK government's position on renewables with the direction of travel for the up-coming year. Mrs Newton also agreed to speak at the 2019 event, and to use her best endeavours to bring the climate change minister to speak as well. Mat Green of Naked Solar talked about PV generation, and battery storage. Jane Charman from the United Down Deep Geothermal Project told us about the plans for a 1MW renewable electricity generating enough power for more than a thousand Cornish homes.

Plans are already being formulated for the next Chacewater Energy Group big event 27th July 2019, which will be an Electric Vehicle Day coupled with an even larger Renewable Energy Fair. Make a note in your diary. Fighting Climate Change. Good practical advice for free!

John Carley

A Message from Rev'd Karen Hunter-Jones of the Eight Saints Cluster of Churches

John 13:35 "By this everyone will know that you are my disciples, if you love one another."

I don't know about you, but I love being with happy people.

It has been a joy to be among you and sense that the happiness levels are really quite high here. Life has dealt many of you some hard blows, but I haven't been invited to any pity parties yet. I have seen resilience in many eyes and heard acceptance and thankfulness in many voices. You are good people, gathering week-in, week-out to worship your Creator and participate in the gift of His Son.

Happy people are attractive. Communities who care for one another enable happiness. You can't buy that. You can't develop a strategy to achieve it. Love is not a successful business model. It is a way of life, a way of being, an attitude of heart and mind.

Jesus said, "When we love one another, everyone will recognise that we are living by a different discipline...under another rule."

We're not under the making-money-rule, or the big-successful-business rule.

We are under the rule of the small, secret acts of kindness, the quiet words of encouragement, the thoughtful texts or phone calls, the visits to the sick and isolated, none of which will ever hit the Church Times Headlines, let alone any secular national press, but oh...how rewarding a rule it is. As we excel in this way of life more and more, we will continue to raise the happiness levels and fulfil Jesus' prediction that EVERYONE will then know that we are His disciples, and by inference will want to join in.

The UK faces an epidemic of loneliness and isolation. Is the solution the latest strategy for Church Growth copied from the God Channel or some city mega-church? Or is it as simple and as demanding as "Love one another"?

I don't know about you, but I don't want to go to more meetings or think up more fund-raising strategies or develop more programs.

But I do want to hang out with people, get to know them and be known by them, find out what makes them tick, enjoy their quirki-ness and laugh about life together. I want to give love and receive it.

I want to celebrate with others in their highs and weep with them in their lows. I want the kind company of others when there are no words and I want to regularly gather with others around a table laden with a nourishing meal.

And I don't think I am unique...I think that basically it's what we as human beings all need and want.

So to quote Pharrell Williams in his world number one hit: "Clap along if you feel like happiness is the truth."

JENNY'S GARDEN PATCH ~ OCTOBER

Now that September has passed by the autumn is now definitely here for real, and it feels colder. It's a beautiful time of year, with the trees changing colour. October is the time to clear up after the summer and prepare for the winter and spring ahead.

PLANT OF THE MONTH

CONIFERS

With several hundred varieties of conifers available in the UK, existing in all shapes and sizes there is a conifer on hand to suit every type of garden. Choose from tiny dwarfs to magnificent trees – the modern conifer can add structure and drama to any space, large or small.

British conifers are incredibly versatile and can fulfil a number of roles in the garden.

Some are perfect for growing on balconies and patios, others great for giving height to borders. Alternatively, try using a pair of conifers around a door to create a striking, formal look.

Soil preparation is important. The size of the planting hole should be larger than the pot the conifer has been growing in. Add suitable organic material such as garden compost, well-rotted farm manure or weathered mushroom compost and mix in with the soil before filling around the plant's roots.

Conifers will need watering to get them established, but once growing will need little attention and will provide year-round interest. They are pretty disease resistant, virtually maintenance free, needing just a little loving care during really cold spells and will perform for years to come.

OCTOBER IN THE GARDEN

- Bring in tender perennials, trim and store in a frost-free place
- Mulch your border with homemade compost
- Start a new compost heap
- Compost summer bedding and plant up containers with bulbs and winter bedding. Consider planting a couple with small evergreen shrubs to give a bit of structure and green through the winter months. Euonymus, ivies and dwarf conifers are ideal.
- Plant bulbs in the garden
- Put Glue Bands on fruit trees
- Harvest carrots and potatoes, making sure the crops are clean and dry before you put them into storage. Marrows can be stored once their skins have been hardened in the sun.
- Finish picking tomatoes before the plants become diseased. You can hang up the whole plant to ripen green trusses, or alternatively pick the fruit and ripen it individually. Or you could always make some green tomato chutney!
- New lawns can be laid or sown on well-prepared sites.
- Scarify established lawns with a rake, then aerate with a fork if you haven't done it already. There's still time to use Autumn lawn food and moss killer.
- This is also a good time of year to plant new shrubs and perennials. The warmth in the soil will help them to get quickly established. Be generous with the planting mixture and be sure to water in well in dry weather.

Well that's all for this month, I hope there will some nice days to get out and work in the garden, the autumn can be a fantastic season full of colour and crisp bright days. Whatever the month brings enjoy your garden before the days become too cold and short. If you would like any further horticultural advice please come along to Chacewater Garden Centre and have a chat with any of the helpful and friendly staff.

Local Government News

Dear Reader

When I try to write this report about my work and involvement with Cornwall Council it often strays a long way from Chacewater Parish. That has been the case, in particular, this week as I write.

Case number one came on the agenda of the full Cornwall Council meeting held on Tuesday 10th September – when the debate was, should Cornwall Council endorse “The Devon and Cornwall Police Authority” joining with the Dorset Police force? After a considerable debate, this was firmly rejected. As a somewhat cynical person trying to read between the lines was this decision already made? Or, are there are other options being considered such as will this lead to a west country Police force, or has been done in Scotland, is this a preliminary idea towards a full English Police force? As is often said, “watch this space” and I will try and keep you up to date with any changing developments.

Case number two, with the proposed cut in Members of Parliament from 650 to 600, should Cornwall have five or six MPs? if Cornwall is reduced to 5, with the remaining constituency spread into Devon. This decision will be taken by Parliament, but Cornwall Council has been asked for its opinion and this was debated at the full council meeting, which as you can imagine the vote was for 6 MPs for Cornwall alone, which I thought was being rather selfish for the rest of the country, because if there were 6 MPs the number of electors per MP would be less than in the rest of the country.

I have also just written a report to the Leader of Cornwall Council about my work with the Coast to Coast group which in my case is one of four in Cornwall. This group stretches from the north to the south coast across the central part of Cornwall covering roughly the former Carrick Council area. This group awards money from the European Agricultural and Rural Development fund and is aimed at business improvement and employment in rural areas. We have awarded grants from a sheep handling system to a building and fitting out of a catering kitchen in a village shop.

At long last, I think most of the difficult situations at Brookside have been sorted out. Only one outside light yet to be repaired and that is the one that shines across the car parks at the entrance to the flats – but we will get there.

As you can imagine this work has really been quite intensive, however I still very much enjoy representing this large area (Chacewater, Kenwyn and Baldhu Ward) on Cornwall Council and I can be of any help or support to you, please contact me.

VILLAGE PONDWATCH – SEPTEMBER 2018

The pond shrinks through the last days of a glorious summer. There's more cloud in the sky, the sun less intense, but the air is still warm. On the bankside the toughest plants thrive and a heavy crop of blackberries moulders in the damp. White butterflies and brown Speckled Wood butterflies often flick through the leaves and across the water. Flashes of orange or black, red and white may be seen as a Comma or Red Admiral butterfly goes by.

Common carder bumblebees forage through the hedgerows and tall branches of purple loosestrife around the pond. Wasps also wander among the leaves and settle on lily pads to drink. A southern hawker dragonfly continues his long patrol – striped yellow/green shoulders and blue-spotted tail bright even on dull afternoons. Earlier, when the sun shines, red darter dragonflies meet and some pairs dance over the water.

Towards sunset, a small grey moth meanders back and forth across the pond. Mostly she flies a few centimetres above the water, sometimes dips to the surface or rises high among the ash tree leaves. Homeward bound, a flock of sparrows pauses to watch and the moth returns to her resting place by the waterside. Here, fleshy seed heads of yellow flag iris dangle like plums and droop towards the water. Lilies remain in flower even as leaves start to turn yellow. Many water boatmen ripple the surface while a water stick insect lurks below a lily pad.
